As I'm sure you're aware by now, we've just started our new Articles and Quick tips section of the website. You can get to it from the front page of all the sites. I've already got ten new articles up there, and more are going up every day. You really need to keep an eye on this as we develop it out. You're going to have hundreds of articles and back issues of the newsletter to help you on your path.

The Blog is Real...

Now, I'm sure you're also aware that we've got our Blog up and running.

What's a Blog?

Well, a Blog is short for "Web Log," and it's my new feature for you guys who read these newsletters...

Add this URL to your bookmarks:

<http://www.alphaeducation.com/blog/blog.htm>

This is a page that I will update frequently with all kinds of information. Everything from the projects I'm currently working on, to questions and answers, to topics I'm considering, to information about my latest adventures in Lady-land.

(And, if you happen to know what RSS is, my site can be added to your news feeds so you get the LATEST and greatest.)

If you are a member of Blogger.com, you will be able to post replies to my feed as well. How about that!

Make sure you add this link right away! I will start publishing the weekly newsletter in the Blog eventually, too...

That's it for now. I'll have a regular newsletter again for you soon, but I'm hard at work on creating more enhancements on the site... Enjoy!

(Go check out the surveys we've got on the site now, too...)
